KUMYSS.

Milk Wine.

IS GETTING TO BE THE MAIN RELIance of the physician in all cases of debility in which prompt improvement of the general tone is imperative. Kumyss is the blandest and most easily digested food, and as such the best nourishment for a weak stomach; at the same time, through the process of fermentation which Kumyss undergoes, medicinal qualities are developed which we vainly look for in materia medica, so that in wasting, extreme cases of dyspepsia, Kumyss acts like a charm, promptly relieving all the distressing symptoms of such cases. When the stomach rejects all else, Kumyss is retained and assimilated, affording the patient nourishment, strength and comfort, and, as a consequence, wholesome cases and refreshing sleep follows. In scarlet, intermittant and typhoid fever Kumyss is the best diet. It satisfies thirst and hunger and allays the fever. It is also highly recommended in consumption as tonic and restorative. But not only in extreme cases should Kumyss be resorted to; it should be the chief remedy for a weak stomach.

The dyspeptic brain worker with a few glasses of Kumyss a day will improve his digestion, and nerve force. Ladies would be less nervous, more vigorous and healthier looking, if they should add to their daily diet a few glasses of Kumyss.

Manufactured and for sale only by

OZCENA.

Ozcena is the professional or technical name given to an advanced form of catarrh in which ulceration has eaten through the membrane lining of the nose to the cartilages or the bone. Any case of catarrh may end in ozcena, but it most frequently occurs in those who are naturally scrofulous. The discharge takes place through the nostrils or through the throat, and is generally of a yellowish or greenish-yellow color, frequently tinged with blood, and almost always attended by an offensive smell. In the language of Dr. Wood, of Philadelphia, "the disease is one of the most obdurate and disagreeable which the physician has to encounter. In bad cases the breath of the patient becomes so revolting as to isolate him from society, and render him an object of dislust even to himself."

In some instance pieces of bone become separated and slough off, leaving deep, unhealthy ulcers, which secrete a blood matter, and are extremely difficult to heal.

After ozcena has continued some time the sense of smell becomes impaired and often lost.

Deafness is one of its most common consequences and results from its extension through the eustachian tube to the internal ear.

Pains in the head and over the frontal sinuses, impairing memory and even insanity frequently springs from its extension to the brain.

The greatest danger, however, because the most common, is that it will extend downward and affect the lungs. In most cases of pulmonary disease catarrh is present in some degree, and in many instances it causes a large share of the patient's discomfort.

Besides these grave consequences, all of which are liable to spring from scrofulous catarrh or ozcena, there are others which, if less dangerous, are sufficiently unpleasant. It occasions great unhappiness to thousands of both sexes, by isolating them and preventing their settlement in life. An offensive running from the nose, with foul breath, is about as great a calamity as can befall young people.

The Times.

Office—Temple, Main and New High.

THIS morning's report from General Grant is somewhat better.

MINISTER PHELPS has arrived in England, and will shortly enter upon his new diplomatic duties.

A TEXAS mob did a neat job yesterday, releasing forty convicts and making off with them, after overpowering their guard.

RUSSIA and England make no progress in the direction of coming together. The Bear is stiff, while the Lion recoils.

OUR sea-coast defenses, both on the Atlantic and the Pacific sides, are in a deplorable condition of inefficiency, according to Lieutenant Griffith, of the Corps of Engineers.

RIEL'S rebellion is apparently ended. The half-breeds are coming into General Middleton's camp and surrendering in large numbers. They were evidently hit hard by the Grenadiers, losing heavily. The cry that they were forced into the rebellion is now raised.

ZACH MONTGOMERY has "got thar," so a Washington dispatch says, asserting that his appointment as Assistant Attorney-General for the Interior Department is a foregone conclusion. If the Administration thinks Montgomery is a fair representative of the California Democracy, it has a mighty poor opinion of the latter.

THE Toledo Commercial Telegram waves the ensanguined garment in the following aggravating fashion. On the day when the President and Cabinet visited Gettysburg our contemporary said: "No doubt it will be an affecting occasion when the ex-Confederate members of the Cabinet visit the Gettysburg Cemetery with the President to-day. How their hearts will swell with gratitude to Almighty God that the Confederate army got everlastingly thrashed at Gettysburg, and they are now Cabinet officers of this great and united Nation, instead of obscure and unimportant members of a weak confederation of 'Sovereign States,' founded upon cotton and negro slavery!"

AMONG other Republican thieves under the late administration was Mr. George W. Casilear. He was chief of the engraving branch of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing of the Treasury Department. Although the legal salary of the office is but six hundred dollars he managed to draw five thousand a year. He did this by patenting everything about the engraving bureau that could be patented, and thus charging the bureau a royalty. Mr. Casileu has been dismissed and the new Superintendent, Mr. O'Neil, intends to put an end to all royalties as soon as possible. —[Los Angeles Herald.

There are several errors in the above. 1. The name is Casilear, not "Casileu." 2. There is no evidence that he was a "Republican thief," or a thief at all. 3. The legal salary of the office is not "six hundred," but thirty-six hundred dollars a year. 4. The late incumbent had authority to receive royalties for the use of certain inventions of his own, which he declined to sell to the Government, to an amount sufficient to make his total annual compensation, including salary, reach not more than five thousand dollars. 5. It is legally impossible for the incumbent to "patent everything about the engraving bureau," or to patent anything at all except what he is the inventor of. 6. Casilear was dismissed for no better reason than because his place was wanted for a Democrat. 7. The "new superintendent," Mr. O'Neil, will not put an end to any royalties for the use of inventions of his own, should he develop brains enough to originate any new and patentable device for use in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. With the above exceptions, the aforesaid Democratic arraignment of Mr. "Casilen" is substantially correct.

PLACERS ON BALDY.

Profitable Dry Diggings in San Bernardino County.

The San Bernardino Times of the 13th says:

A great deal of quiet work in various lines is going on in our county of which little is said and little known. Among others which give fine promise of importance are some placer mines on this side of Old Baldy, where Messrs. Henderson, Banks and others have some very rich workings—but owing to lack of water it has been found impossible to work them profitably except during a short season each year, when they pay handsomely. As much as $15 has been taken from one barrowful of dirt, and frequently large nuggets are discovered. It was here that a $400 piece was discovered a short time since, while smaller pieces have been frequent. It is now proposed to carry water to these mines from springs some three miles distant, and to this end Mr. J. B. Henderson is now engaged on a large lot of pipe which will shortly be placed in position, a wealthy gentleman from Wisconsin finding the means to prosecute the work. The pipe in position, it is estimated, will cost $10,000, and when water is got to the mines they can be worked the year round, and large returns may be expected. Large quantities of gold have already been taken from these workings with the primitive and limited means of working now employed, and with better facilities there is every reason to believe they will develop handsomely.

A Distinguished Guest.

Santa Barbara Independent.]

Senator Sherman arrived last night, overland from Los Angeles, and stopped at the Arlington. The distinguished ex-Secretary of the Treasury and Senator from Ohio, with the party accompanying him, is being entertained to-day at Glen Annie. The acquaintance of Senator Sherman and Colonel Hollister dates back to their boyhood. The Mayor of Santa Barbara and other prominent citizens took occasion to pay their respects to the Senator last evening, and we hear with regret that he will not be enabled to make a long stay in the city.

THE OLD TESTAMENT

Printed Copies Furnished the London Newspapers.

HISTORY OF THE WORK OF REVISION.

An Immense Amount of Labor, Covering a Period of More Than Fourteen Years.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

LONDON, May 16.—Copies of the revised version of the Old Testament were given to the newspapers at midnight last night. All the papers this morning contain copious extracts from the work. In the following paragraphs is presented the substance of a semi-official article prepared for the London Times, in which some account of the work of revision, with particular reference to the American part of it, is given. Finally, an international work of fourteen years has come to a close. The revised version of the New Testament was issued in May, 1881, and now the revised Old Testament will soon be published in all parts of the English-speaking world. This revision is the most important event in the history of the English Bible since the publication of the King James translation in 1611. The success of the Old Testament may not be as great as that of the New, of which more than a million copies were sold on the day of publication and more than three million copies before the close of the year, but it will probably be more favorably received and less severely criticised, for it involves no changes of the Hebrew text, no other manuscripts than the Masoritic having been discovered, and the idiom of the authorized version is most carefully preserved out of regard for the conservative feeling of the church in its attachment for the language of the old version. All errors of translation, however, have been removed, and the revision will be pronounced by every competent Bible reader to be a great improvement. It presents the results of the combined labor of man, a large number of the best Hebrewists and Biblical scholars of England and the United States, most of them professors of Hebrew in universities and seminaries. It has, moreover, the advantage of the vast advance of the last fifty years on Oriental philology, Biblical geography, history and antiquity, all of which were but imperfectly understood by the forty-seven translators of King James, although it is freely admitted they did the very best in their day. The new version is not a good version in the place of a bad one, but a great improvement of a good version. The movement for the present version was inaugurated at the consecration of Canterbury, the mother church of Anglo-Saxon christendom, May 24th, 1870, by the adoption of the following resolutions:

First—That it is desirable a revision of the authorized version of the Holy Scriptures be undertaken.

Second—That the revision be so conducted as to comprise both marginal readings and such emendations as may be found necessary to insert in the text of the authorized version.

Third—That in the above resolutions we do not contemplate any new translation of the Bible or any alteration of the language, except where, in the judgment of the most competent scholars, such change is necessary.

Fourth—That in such necessary changes the style of language employed in the existing version be closely followed.

Fifth—That it is desirable the convention should nominate a body of its own numbers to undertake the work of revision, who shall be at liberty to invite the co-operation of any one eminent for scholarship, to whatever nation or religious body they may belong.

Steps towards the formation of an American Committee of Revision were taken almost immediately after the organization of the English Committee. The first meeting of the New Testament Committee in England was held June 22, 1870. On the 7th of July following the two Houses of Convocation met for the purpose of securing the co-operation of some American divines, and to Bishop Wilberforce and Dean Stanley was assigned soon afterwards the duty of securing this result. Dr. Angus, who was contemplating a visit to America, was directed to open a correspondence with Rev. L. Scheif and other American scholars while in the United States in regard to this work. In August, 1870, Dr. Angus sent a letter to various American scholars, in which he explained matters. Meetings of two American committees were held every month from September to May, inclusive in each year at rooms 42 and 44 Bible House, New York. The summer meeting was held in July usually at New Haven and over at Princeton. The summer meetings continued for a week. The other meetings for two days. Members sat around a common table and freely and fully discussed such passages or chapters as had been previously assigned for the particular meeting, each member having already examined and investigated them for himself. The work was revised in this careful manner twice from the beginning to the end. At the first revision changes in the authorized revision were recorded, for fear their consideration in case two would not be favored by a majority of votes, but in the second review the rule demanded the vote of two-thirds in order to adopt the proposed change. Finally, the passages were examined a third time in which unreconciled differences still remained between the views of English and American committees.

It may be safely said no criticism has been made on the New Testament portion of the work already published which was not anticipated and accorded fair and full discussion by the revisers in the progress of the work, as the two committees included scholars of the principal Protestant denominations. An opportunity was given for a fair and able presentation of the views of each bearing upon the matter of translation of words and sentences. Controversy, however, never arose in the meetings on points dividing the religious bodies. The spirit of scholarship rose far above the sectarian spirit, and the latter was at no time manifested. This fact may also bear with itself a testimony to the general accuracy of their work. The relation between the committees of revision in the two countries involved some questions of importance which called for extended correspondence, but were finally settled by agreement between the two parties, which met the approval of both. At an early period in the history of the work arrangements had been made between the English committee and officers connected with the University presses of Oxford and Cambridge by which the revised version in Great Britain became the property of these institutions on condition that the large expenses incidental to the work in that country should be paid by them. The copyright in Great Britain accordingly passed into their control. It was at no time decided by the American committee to have any such arrangement made between themselves and publishers in the United States, or in any way to put a restriction on the sale of the new books for the purpose of securing any remuneration for their own services or any benefit for themselves whatever. No copyright was thought of or wished for in America with any such aim in view. At one time, however, the subject of securing a copyright for the sole purpose of preventing inaccurate or imperfect editions was considered. This led to much correspondence with the University and with lawyers in America, but this scheme was abandoned. The American revisers were determined not to accept pecuniary benefit for their work and the danger of an incorrect edition was formally decided to be too little to change them from their settled purpose. As some standard edition, however, was necessary, the American committee agreed to make a public statement that the one issued by the University press was the one for whose accuracy they would hold themselves responsible.

The attitude of the English committee towards the suggestions of the American revisers was always that of readiness to give the most respectful consideration. In July, 1873, when the question of the relation of the two bodies was first brought under consideration, both old and new committees in England declared that they were glad to have an opportunity of repeating the plan of the English work, and suggested the formation of an American committee of twelve or eighteen, to which the work of the English revisers could be referred for criticism and revision. He gave some hints as to how the expenses of such committee could be met, and invited correspondence on the subject. Dr. Angus also had personal communication with Dr. Scheff. The result was the selection of certain gentleman who were fitted for the work and were likely to be regarded as authorities in Biblical learning by the American public, and the submission of their names to Bishop Elliott and Dean Stanley, as representing the English body, a few months later. Dean Stanley made the first formal communication by letter in the discharge of the duty assigned to him after the vote in the convention in July, 1870. On the 13th of January, 1871, he wrote to Dr. Scheff, as follows:

DEANERY, WESTMINSTER ABBEY, LONDON, Jan. 13, 1871.—MY DEAR SIR: I have been in communication with Dr. Angus on the subject of the revision of the authorized version of the Bible now set on foot by the two committees of English, Scottish and Irish scholars appointed under the authority of Canterbury. By that committee and invitation of the lower House of Convocation the Bishop of Winchester and myself were requested to ask the friendly co-operation of some divines from the United States of America in a work it was felt concerned that vast part of the English speaking races of the world as nearly as ourselves, and I find the Bishop of Winchester has already communicated on the subject with the church in America, but as the general convention did not meet until the following autumn the subject could not formally be brought before the House of Bishops before that time.

Under date of August 7, 1871, Bishop Wilberforce again addressed Bishop Potter in a letter, which was submitted to the House of Bishops for their decision. The House of Bishops decided to take no official part in the work but left individual members free act as they might; but so much time elapsed in the preliminary communications between America and England that the final arrangements for the American committee were not made until the summer of 1871.

These arrangements were concluded by Dr. Scheff, who visited England that summer for the purpose. On his return in the autumn the committee began its work, though nearly two years later than the English committee. In beginning the work they pressed forward with such activity that they were enabled to complete it contemporaneously with their English brethren. The first meeting of the American committee, when its organization was completed, was held at the Bible House in New York on the 7th of October, 1872.

WASHINGTON TOPICS.

Zachariah Montgomery Appointed an Assistant Attorney-General.

WASHINGTON, May 15. — Zachariah Montgomery, a prominent California lawyer, called at the Interior Department to-day, in company with Attorney-General Garland, and was introduced to the employes of the law office by Secretary Lamar as Assistant Attorney-General of the department. It is understood the formal appointment will be made in a few days, and his predecessor's resignation will take effect on the 24th inst.

A CALIFORNIAN AS MINISTER TO CHINA.

The rumor that Judge Wallace, of San Francisco, will be selected as Minister to China is confirmed It is stated, however, that Judge Field will file a protest against Wallace's appointment and file charges against him. This will probably delay the appointment.

ROSECRANS MAY GET AN OFFICE YET.

It is understood the President will appoint General Rosecrans to one of the following positions: Collector San Francisco, Register of the Treasury, Register of Wills of the District of Columbia, or a vacancy soon to occur on the Mississippi River Commission.

SPECIAL AGENTS OF THE LABOR BUREAU.

Secretary Lamar has appointed the following-named persons as special agents of the Bureau of Labor: Chas. B. Judd of Colorado, Jones Libby of New York, Edwin L. R. Gold of Maryland, Henry C. Wilson of New Jersey, Wm. H. Stinson of New Hampshire, James Reed of Massachusetts, Arthur B. Woodford of Connecticut, J. H. Groves of Delaware, H. S. Irmson of Pennsylvania, Gregor Fox of Pennsylvania, Charles F. Gillin of Ohio, William Mandley of Ohio, Ringold W. Browning of Maryland, Wm. C. Trenhole of South Carolina, Henry Newman of Missouri, Henry Jones of Georgia, and S. O. Ward of New York. It is learned that in making these appointments the Secretary acted without regard to party affiliations, and they were selected without respect to any theories they might entertain upon the economy question. The districts to which these appointees are to be assigned have not yet been fully determined.

MINISTER PHELPS ARRIVES.

The Reception Given Him at Southampton.

SOUTHAMPTON, May. 15.—Mr. Phelps, United States Minister, arrived to-day. There was a large crowd at the docks. Two tugs, having on board a reception party, started out to meet the Elbe the moment she was signaled. An eulogistic address from the corporation of Southampton was presented to Mr. Phelps. The weather was fine, and much enthusiasm prevailed. Mr. Lowell was prevented from personally welcoming Mr. Phelps, owing to the Queen's command that he should dine with her Majesty at Windsor Castle.

SOUTHAMPTON, May 15.—The directors of the Isle of Wight Steam Packet Company placed a steamer at the disposal of the reception party, to convey Mr. Phelps from the Elbe to the shore. At the landing Mr. Phelps was welcomed by the Mayor and municipal authorities of Southampton, and members of the Chamber of Commerce. Several speeches were made expressing joy at his arrival. In reply, Mr. Phelps cordially thanked them for their kind and unexpected reception, adding: "Nothing could have introduced me more pleasantly to your beautiful country. I have enjoyed the sight of it for the past two days while passing along the southern coast. I never had the pleasure of seeing it before. I assure you I came to England hoping and trusting most sincerely that I may be instrumental in promoting and continuing in a very small way those cordial, kindly and generous relations so long existing, and which I hope will always exist, between you and your kinsmen in the great west." Mr. Phelps and wife then visited the principal places of interest in the town. They declined the offer of a special train, and proceeded to London in the evening on the regular express train.

SHOOTING AFFRAY AT VALLEJO.

A Man Shoots His Wife and Daughter and is in Turn Shot.

VALLEJO, May 15.—Last night Michael O'Keefe returned home in an intoxicated condition, and without provocation opened fire with a revolver on his family. Mrs. O'Keefe was shot through the body on the left side, and another ball entered her left side and traversed her body. Maggie, a twelve-year-old daughter, was shot through the right shoulder. Mrs. O'Keefe, turning around, saw her husband pointing the pistol at himself and firing. He shot himself twice under the right shoulder and once in the right side. The foregoing is the statement of Mrs. O'Keefe. O'Keefe says he was sitting at the table eating supper when his son John shot him twice. The general impression among the neighbors is that O'Keefe was ugly with drink and shot his wife and daughter, and was shot in turn by his son John. The father and mother are in a critical condition and not expected to live. The little girl is also in a precarious condition, but hopes are entertained for her recovery. O'Keefe is the same man who set fire to his house two years ago, and when the officers went to arrest him he cut his throat, but recovered. The members of the family are in poor circumstances. O'Keefe's revolver showed that three shots had been fired from it, while four chambers of John's weapon had been discharged. John was placed in jail. He was unwilling to give any account of the affray.

A Proposition to "Remove" Sarah Althea.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—The Alta this morning publishes an account of a proposition made by a young man named D. H. Jordan to Senator Sharon for the "removal" of Mrs. Sarah Althea Hill Sharon. Jordan, on being received by the Senator, said he would undertake to kill Mrs. Hill Sharon, and asked the Senator how much he was willing to pay for the job. The Senator expressed so much horror at the proposition that the man took fright and ran away. Fred Davis, private detective for Senator Sharon, gave chase and captured Jordan on McAllister street. It was found that the young fellow was of respectable parentage, but had been drinking heavily of late. It is supposed that his mind had become affected from drink and reading accounts of the trial. On the earnest plea of his mother, Jordan was allowed to go unarrested.

Shot His Father.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—The Chronicle's Forest Hill, California, special says: Tommy Lemmel, fourteen years old, shot and mortally wounded his father this evening, at Bath, two miles from this place. The father, who had been on a protracted spree, came home about six o'clock, drunk and quarrelsome. On entering the house he first attacked his niece. She broke away from him. Then going into a bedroom where his wife was watching beside the sick bed of the boy, Tommy, he applied a vile epithet to her and threatened to kill her, but left the room and again attacked his niece with a stick of wood outside the house, but before he could use it the boy, who had meanwhile arisen, took a revolver and shot his father directly under the right eye, the ball going obliquely through the brain. At last accounts the man was sinking rapidly.

The Central Pacific and Oregon and California.

PORTLAND, Or., May 15.—The announcement that the Central Pacific had acquired control of the Oregon and California Railroad occasioned some surprise here. It is the impression here that the Central Pacific has decided to take hold of the Oregon and California, not so much from a desire to invade this section as to relieve themselves of the half million a year subsidy paid to the Northern Pacific to keep out of California.

RUSSIA REJECTS ENGLAND'S PROPOSAL

The Sariks Oppose the New Frontier Line, and Russia Decides to Support Their Claims.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 15.—The Moscow Gazette says: "Russia's resolute attitude has brought the British Cabinet to confess its mistakes and to hasten to rectify them."

LONDON, May 15.—The Standard believes Russia definitely declines to sanction the proposals regarding the Afghan frontier, just submitted for approval.

LONDON, May 15.—The Standard says, editorially: "To speak plainly, the draft of the Anglo-Russian agreement, which was sent to St. Petersburg for approval, was found to be wholly unacceptable to the Czar's ministers. Though not formally rejected, it has been so thoroughly condemned in detail that, practically, it has ceased to be an agreement. There is something vastly more serious than a hitch in the proceedings. We are back in February again, the situation only being altered to our disadvantage."

The Times' Calcutta correspondent denies that there has been a stopping of military preparations in India. He says rumors to that effect are untrue.

PARIS, May 15.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg to the Journal des Debats states that Russia has entirely rejected the British proposals. The same dispatch also states that Russia will demand the right to have an acknowledged Russian representative at Cabul, the capital of Afghanistan. French diplomatists think this latter demand, if made, will prove more serious than any frontier question.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 15.—The Official Messenger to-day publishes a report from General Komaroff to the effect that the Sariks are opposed to the new frontier line proposed by England, claiming it is an infringement upon their rights and gives the best land in the disputed territory to the Afghans. A council of ministers was held, and after thoroughly discussing the subject it was decided to support the claims of the Sariks. Further preparation between England and Russia will now be necessary, so that the claims of the Sariks may be considered before the Anglo-Russian agreement can be approved by Russia.

THE SITUATION IN A NUTSHELL.

LONDON, May 15.—The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon says it is untrue that Russia has either accepted or rejected the English proposal regarding the Afghan frontier arrangement.

The Globe states that England demanded a definite pledge from Russia to respect the new Russo-Afghan frontier under any circumstances, and to renew the assurance that Afghanistan was outside of the Russian sphere. Russia refused to accede to this request of England, and retaliated by demanding further concessions.

RUSSIA'S REPLY.

LONDON, May 15.—Gladstone stated in the House of Commons that Russia's reply to the proposition concerning the Afghan agreement had been awaited for some days. A portion of the papers relating to the frontier question would be circulated to-morrow, but as the negotiations were incomplete the papers would be broken off at the Penjdeh incident. In regard to the report that Russia had given intimation of a demand to have acknowledged a Russian representative at Cabul, Gladstone said he knew nothing.

ASKING RUSSIAN PROTECTION.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 15. — Reports continue to reach here from Teheran concerning the revolt of the Mohammedan population of Kashgar, in Chinese Turkestan, against Chinese rule. It is now stated that the revolutionists have driven the mandarins from all the principal towns. It is also said the leader of the Mohammedans is a son of Yakoob Bey, and that he has invoked Russian protection, and has asked Russia to occupy Kashgar and supply the rebels with arms and ammunition.

LONDON, May 15.—Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice, Under Foreign Secretary, announced in the House of Commons this afternoon, that Russia had not yet sent any answer to the English proposal.

Irish Crimes Act.

LONDON, May 15.—In the House of Lords this afternoon, Baron Carlingford, Lord President of the Council, announced that the Government intended to introduce a bill embodying a large number, but not all, the provisions of the Irish crimes act. Referring to the crimes act, he said, without entering into details, the government intended to embody various provisions into that act which they deemed to be both valuable and equitable. This statement was greeted with groans by the Parnellite members. It would be due to the government, continued Gladstone, to press the House to pass the bill into a law. Were the conditions more favorable the government would be most anxious to deal with the question of self-government in Ireland, and also with land purchase in Ireland. Both were measures toward which the government felt they had unfulfilled obligations. It was with great regret the government announced their inability to ask the House to deal with these measures during the present session.

Five Children Perish in the Flames.

OWATONNA, Minn., May 15.—Henry Lewiston's house caught on fire last night. His family, consisting of himself, wife, seven children and hired man, were sleeping at the time in the second story. Lewiston and wife, awakened by the glare, rushed down stairs, the woman carrying her youngest child in her arms and another child, aged ten, and the hired man following. When Lewiston opened the door the flames burst in, nearly overpowering him and burning off his hair and beard. The hired man succeeded in breaking out the window, through which they escaped, but not before Mrs. Lewiston was severely burned. Lewiston made frantic efforts to reach his little daughter and four sons, still asleep upstairs, but all five perished in the flames.

General Grant's Condition.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Shortly after 11 o'clock last night General Grant was asleep. Dr. Douglas remained all night, and when he left the house this morning said the General had a good average night's rest and had slept more than six hours during the night, and when the Doctor left the patient still slept. He arose a half hour later and was dressed. The General suffered little or no pain during the evening and night, and the swelling at the jaw had subsided much. The Doctor will return at noon to drive with the General.

Two Negro Murderers Hanged.

HUNTER'S POINT, L. I., May 15.—Charles Henry Rugg, the negro who murdered old Mrs. Lydia Maybee and her daughter Mary, at Oyster Bay, L. I., nearly two years ago, was hanged in jail here at 11:45 this morning. He died without a struggle.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—John Langster, the negro ex-lunatic, desperado, thief and murderer, was hanged in the corridor of the city jail to-day.

The Soudan.

SUAKIM, May 15.—The Grenadiers and Scots Guard will embark to-morrow for England. General Graham and Colonels MacNeil and Freeman will follow with the Australian contingent. A battalion of British infantry, with a battery and company of the Sappers corps and native infantry corps, will remain here as a permanent garrison under command of Colonel Hutchinson.

Convicted of Murder.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., May 15.—H. C. Newby, charged with murdering Joseph Blazier, in March last, near Healdsburg, has been on trial before Judge Temple since last Tu

ENLARGED SHEET.

SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1885.

California at the World's Exposition.

The seventh day of May was "California Day" at the World's Exposition. As our readers have already learned from a special dispatch printed in the TIMES of the 8th inst., the day was grandly and successfully celebrated. The alert New Orleans correspondent of the TIMES sends us copious quotations from the New Orleans press further descriptive of the notable celebration, so gratifying to our State pride, and so important in its influence for good upon the assembled thousands from other quarters of the Great Republic, all eager for information about the Golden State. The matter which our correspondent has sent to the TIMES is all good and highly interesting, but its length and the exigencies of space compel the use of the knife; we must "boil down."

The celebration was heralded by the Item newspaper in the following glowing terms:

California, that magnificent land "whose foam is amber and whose sands are gold," will to-day, through chosen representatives and Commissioners, furnish a magnificent celebration within the halls and on the grounds of the World's Exposition. Louisiana contributed so largely to the early settlement of California when the auriferous fever first broke out, that our people here feel a special interest in the land of grain, grapes and gold, and proud of the magnificent exhibit which their occidental sister State has made.

The Times-Democrat of the following morning said: "Without proceeding into the discussion of the events and features of California Day, the universal verdict may be given: Most successful. To begin with, the weather was charming; the sky just cloudy enough to hide the too direct rays of the sun. The wind was cool, and everything united to make of California Day a golden day worthy of the Golden State. Long before the time announced for the commencement of the exercises the California headquarters were crowded with people, citizens of California and other States, all anxious to participate in the coming festivities. Each visitor to the headquarters was furnished with a blue badge beautifully embossed in gold, bearing the name of the State, the date of its admission to the Union, and various symbolical designs indicative of its prominence in the industrial arts. The ladies were all decorated with absolutely the most elegant badge of the Exposition year. It was composed of red, white and blue ribbons of heavy silk, and from the center of the rosette depended a gold tassel, its connective point covered with a gold coin of Persian coinage.

The triumphal procession was described by the same paper as follows:

After a few moments of waiting, in which the guests strolled through that admirable collection of the resources of California, the band arrived and the triumphal procession was formed. The band struck up an inspiriting air and the cortege moved down the long walk to the Main Building. Through the broad aisles of the great building the procession marched and the stirring notes of the martial music and the rythmical tread of the following cavalcade drew to the scene all the loiterers in the Main Building.

Leaving the great hall, the procession marched to the auditorium under the great oaks. Here was assembled a large audience, who rose and cheered as the line of marchers, headed by Commissioner Andrews, Director General Burke and Dr. Beverly Cole, the orator of the day, entered the reserved space.

The Picayune said the weather was the Californian ideal of "perfect weather."

The Daily States said: "The California celebration was a great success. Indeed, it could not have been otherwise under the management of such a man as Colonel Andrews. * * *

'Will it rain to-morrow?' some one asked on Wednesday. 'No, you can bet your bottom dollar the day will be perfect. It is Andrews' day.' And so it turned out."

Commissioner Andrews called the meeting to order and made his speech. It was a good speech, too, short and to the point. Here are some of its points:

By the vast collection of curious and instructive objects gathered here we have all of us learned much regarding the greatness of our country. You have seen the palmetto and cotton of the South standing side by side with wheat and corn of the Northwestern Territories. At a glance almost one can accurately estimate our boundless national wealth, and the immense diversity of our national products. * * * I will not speak of the character and excellence of the California exhibit, for you have already had opportunities enough to judge it. Of the difficulties and pains experienced in its collection I will say nothing. They are all forgotten in the pleasure of offering to the world an exhibit commensurate with the greatness of my State.

As Californians we have worked hard in common for our mother State, and each will find his best reward in the thought that California is excelled by none in the extent and representative character of her exhibits. * * *

Our celebration to-day is simply for the purpose of promoting knowledge of our country and telling you all something of that wondrous land on the blue Pacific's shore, where gold and silver combine with fruits and golden grain to form that El Dorado sought in vain by the Spaniard, but discovered and developed by the ever restless and energetic American.

The address of Col. Andrews was received by the audience with great favor. After the applause had died away, the commissioner introduced Major E. A. Burke, Director General of the Exposition, who delivered an address, from which the following extracts are made:

What part will California play in connection with the great plans and purposes of this Exposition? We know the relations it holds to our city, and to the great future we are building for it; we know of its gold and its grain, its fruits and its magnificent climate. We know of the vast stores we will draw from there, passing through our city on its way to the East and to Europe. It is no new dream—that of the vast trade and commerce that is to pass through and come from that State into New Orleans. The earliest step I made in manhood in the South was to come here with visions of the grand future of this city in connection with the extension of that great railroad system which has since been perfected between this city and California. I came here to take the superintendency of a section of this railroad, which had then been commenced, and which has been only recently completed. Even then we dreamed of a great, grand, broad-gauge, double-track line from the Gulf to the Pacific, from New Orleans to San Francisco. [Applause.]

But aside from these points, one of the plans and purposes upon which I desire to touch is that, having gathered together here in one vast array all the industries of this country, exemplifications of the thrift and the progress and the commercial development of the whole of our States and Territories, we must now press on to those unoccupied markets that America should years ago have seized upon. Upon this stand the other day I spoke of the $400,000,000 of trade that lies to the south of us in the markets of Latin-America. But across the 2300 miles that lie between New Orleans and San Francisco, and still further across the Pacific, lies a great Oriental trade of $528,000,000 that belongs largely to this country, and that must come to us if we strive for it as we should. We know as regards the foreign exhibits of the Main Building that the first countries to accept the invitation of the Board of Management were China, Japan, Siam and Australasia. Why did they hasten to come to enjoy this feast? Because they know, as we know, that the future will bring the trade of these countries, unless we continue to reject it, into the lap of America. And this grand system of railroad, stretching out from New Orleans to far away San Francisco, why did it put forth its strength in making such magnificent contributions to the exhibit of California? They knew not only of the great interests that connected California with New Orleans as a shipping port to European countries for the products of their State, but they knew also that soon their line must become the great means of transit through the continent of the trade of the Orient.

Not only to the men of California and the Pacific slope do we express our admiration and gratitude, but to the noble women of that State and of the slope, who have presented here over 2000 specimens of the handiwork of the women of that section.

Commissioner Louis McWhirter, of Tennessee, was the orator of the day, and it is needless to observe that he acquitted himself as became "the son of Jack McWhirter." Here is a paragraph from his speech:

Colonel Andrews having left this city on a mission of war in 1844, returns on a mission of peace in 1885. His exhibit is beyond our dreams of development. He has placed here the sampled resources of her fields, forests and mines, side by side with the selected and best ideas of the age, in a carnival of embodied thoughts and a wilderness of manufactured products and inventions that stand as gigantic object lessons before the eyes of the assembled nations. Young Newtons will pass from his exhibit to wake up in other orchards, and boyish Franklins to dally with other clouds. It is therefore in the name of progress, in whose service he has fought; in the name of a great cause, of which the California Department is a grand example, and in the name of equal rights and universal liberty, of which she has ever been a chosen champion, that Tennessee congratulates California and bows in admiration to her representative. * * * If every State and Territory could be represented next year at the American exhibition in London by such men as Colonel Andrews, we would divert so much capital and labor to this country that America would be aroused from Hell Gate to the Golden Gate, and from Tampa Bay to Puget Sound, and in the grand jubilation that would follow, the very mountains would nod to the valleys and the valleys would smile upon the seas and the seas would kiss the shores of other lands to tell them of Utopia found in the youngest of all the nations.

Mr. McWhirter's speech created the utmost enthusiasm. Professor E. A. Spring, in charge of the Chautauqua Alcove, recited a poem, and the exercises were brought to a close. Commissioner Andrews then invited all present to visit California headquarters and partake of Californian hospitality.

Another New Orleans paper said: "California has cause to rejoice over her day. It was one of the grandest of the year." The souvenirs given away were unique and beautiful. Among these were elegant tri-colored silk rosettes for the ladies, silk badges for the gentlemen, and California pampas plumes for everybody.

During his address Dr. R. Beverly Cole made a telling apostrophe to Col. Andrews, and everybody, newspapers included, praised him unstintedly for his successful work.

One of the most delightful features of the celebration was the concert in the Woman's Department. It was late in the evening ere the last man, loth to acknowledge that California Day was a thing of the past, departed from California headquarters.

Our correspondent, in communicating to the TIMES his copious press extracts, says: "I submit these glowing tributes of the local press as pretty good proof—more credible perhaps than my too likely partial accounts—that California fairly outdid herself in the friendly contest of "Days" at the Exposition."

To record California's signal triumph in the arena of the States at the World's Exposition is exquisite pleasure.

CHEAP POISONS.

An Interested Kick Against "A Dime's Worth of Strichnia."

"Querist" sends the TIMES a communication whose substance boils down as follows:

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: In your issue of May 9th under the head of "Probable Suicide," you say Deputy Coroner Whigham found scraps of paper which had been torn up and thrown there. Put together they formed a druggist's label marked "Strychnine, poison. Godfrey Bros." Following up this clue it was learned that a man answering the description of deceased had called at Godfrey Bros.' drug store in the Nadeau block on Thursday, and bought a dime's worth of strychnine. His name appears on the register of poison purchasers as D. H. Griffith.

Do the druggists of Los Angeles conform to the law of California by keeping a correct register of purchasers of poisons? If they do, how is it the register in the case of D. H. Griffith did not give the Coroner some clue to the stated residence of said Griffith? The act of the Legislature plainly says. "The dealer in poisons must obtain the name and address of the purchaser, and the dealer must ascertain by due inquiry whether the name given by the purchaser is his true name or not, and for that purpose may require such person to be identified." Was the man Griffith identified?

Los Angeles boasts a population of 30,000, supports one hundred doctors, more or less, and twenty drug stores. Doctors and druggists are custodians of public health, and both have honorable professions, requiring sufficient education and good judgment. The act to regulate the sale of poisons has been in force since June 1st, 1880. It is a good law, intended to avoid indiscriminate use of deadly drugs. Any dealer who does not conform to it, is not a law-abiding citizen. And the seller has a just right to charge a price to fairly remunerate him for the time, labor and responsibility of keeping a registry.

When a druggist degrades his calling to a mercenary basis so low as to sell ten cents' worth of arsenic, or other poison, in a paper package, merely to accommodate a customer, he is certainly lost to the dignity and high calling of a careful, competent dealer in drugs. Is it not time that the druggists organize a pharmaceutical society for the scientific and moral improvement of the profession; for protection against "cutters" and dealers in adulterated medicines; and for more harmony with the physicians? That the community may know who are competent and honest dispensers of drugs, and learn that a legitimate chemist and apothecary will not deal out dime packages of strychnine to every stranger who merely says he wants to kill rats or rabbits.

Grant.

A name immortal, laurel crowned,
A name for song and story;
A name to echo down the years,
A synonym for glory.

A name to thrill men's hearts with fire
Who for their country battle;
A name for childhood's rosy lips
To lisp amid their prattle.

A name the nation speaks to bless,
And kings delight to honor,
No land withholds its meed of praise
From Grant, the whole world over.

An honest, guileless, childlike man,
This man with name immortal,
May he, like such, have entrance wide
At last through Heaven's portal.

STORIES OF THE DAY.

A Strange Affinity.

There is a family on Hill street who have a large dog. He is a sort of public character, a frequent visitor at stores, saloons, meat markets and business offices. He is inclined to be sociable, likes petting and makes many friends. Of late he has developed an affection for the occupants of the chicken yard, and it is not unusual to see him lying asleep upon the ground, a hen or two upon his back, and a circle of his feathered friends lying around him. They eat together, sleep together and are altogether a happy family.

"I See Jesus."

The little child of an infidel lay dying. Life's tide was slowly ebbing. But as a summer's day draws to its close in calm sweet peacefulness, little Willie's life was passing. But suddenly the heavy lids were lifted and the boy's eyes were opened wide, while his voice rang out clear and triumphant, "O, papa, I see Jesus! I know there is a God, for I see Jesus!" Five minutes later and Willie was at rest, and the invalid father had flung from him forever his unbelief.

A Smart Indiana Hen.

Indianapolis Sentinel.]

Mrs. Asa Ross, of Wabash, found one of her fine chickens apparently dying from an affectation of the throat or craw. With a sharp knife she cut the craw, or food sack, open, removed a large quantity of dry grass and undigested corn which had become packed in the craw, and then stitching up the cut carefully, liberated the chicken which, entirely recovered from its stupor, capered around and finally brought up on the nest, laying an egg within two hours of the time Mrs. Ross performed the operation.

A Specimen of Hideousness.

Providence Star.]

The city authorities of Rochester, N. Y., have removed the Cogswell fountain, which, ever since it was set up, has been an eyesore to the people of that city, whose artistic tastes have not been entirely depraved. The one in Boston will also have to go before long, and whether Pawtucket will be able to endure her specimen of hideousness or not is still questionable.

Coyotes and Councilmen.

Orange Tribune.]

The Covina Independent says the coyotes come into town at night and howl, thus disturbing the peaceful slumbers of the good Covina people. That's too bad. If you had a couple of Los Angeles policemen, or even a councilman, you could scare them clear out of the city limits and not half try.

ENLARGED SHEET.

SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1885.

California at the World's Exposition.

The seventh day of May was "California Day" at the World's Exposition. As our readers have already learned from a special dispatch printed in the TIMES of the 8th inst., the day was grandly and successfully celebrated. The alert New Orleans correspondent of the TIMES sends us copious quotations from the New Orleans press further descriptive of the notable celebration, so gratifying to our State pride, and so important in its influence for good upon the assembled thousands from other quarters of the Great Republic, all eager for information about the Golden State. The matter which our correspondent has sent to the TIMES is all good and highly interesting, but its length and the exigencies of space compel the use of the knife; we must "boil down."

The celebration was heralded by the Item newspaper in the following glowing terms:

California, that magnificent land "whose foam is amber and whose sands are gold," will to-day, through chosen representatives and Commissioners, furnish a magnificent celebration within the halls and on the grounds of the World's Exposition. Louisiana contributed so largely to the early settlement of California when the auriferous fever first broke out, that our people here feel a special interest in the land of grain, grapes and gold, and proud of the magnificent exhibit which their occidental sister State has made.

The Times-Democrat of the following morning said: "Without proceeding into the discussion of the events and features of California Day, the universal verdict may be given: Most successful. To begin with, the weather was charming; the sky just cloudy enough to hide the too direct rays of the sun. The wind was cool, and everything united to make of California Day a golden day worthy of the Golden State. Long before the time announced for the commencement of the exercises the California headquarters were crowded with people, citizens of California and other States, all anxious to participate in the coming festivities. Each visitor to the headquarters was furnished with a blue badge beautifully embossed in gold, bearing the name of the State, the date of its admission to the Union, and various symbolical designs indicative of its prominence in the industrial arts. The ladies were all decorated with absolutely the most elegant badge of the Exposition year. It was composed of red, white and blue ribbons of heavy silk, and from the center of the rosette depended a gold tassel, its connective point covered with a gold coin of Persian coinage.

The triumphal procession was described by the same paper as follows:

After a few moments of waiting, in which the guests strolled through that admirable collection of the resources of California, the band arrived and the triumphal procession was formed. The band struck up an inspiriting air and the cortege moved down the long walk to the Main Building. Through the broad aisles of the great building the procession marched and the stirring notes of the martial music and the rythmical tread of the following cavalcade drew to the scene all the loiterers in the Main Building.

Leaving the great hall, the procession marched to the auditorium under the great oaks. Here was assembled a large audience, who rose and cheered as the line of marchers, headed by Commissioner Andrews, Director General Burke and Dr. Beverly Cole, the orator of the day, entered the reserved space.

The Picayune said the weather was the Californian ideal of "perfect weather."

The Daily States said: "The California celebration was a great success. Indeed, it could not have been otherwise under the management of such a man as Colonel Andrews. * * * 'Will it rain to-morrow?' some one asked on Wednesday. 'No, you can bet your bottom dollar the day will be perfect. It is Andrews' day.' And so it turned out."

Commissioner Andrews called the meeting to order and made his speech. It was a good speech, too, short and to the point. Here are some of its points:

By the vast collection of curious and instructive objects gathered here we have all of us learned much regarding the greatness of our country. You have seen the palmetto and cotton of the South standing side by side with wheat and corn of the Northwestern Territories. At a glance almost one can accurately estimate our boundless national wealth, and the immense diversity of our national products. * * * I will not speak of the character and excellence of the California exhibit, for you have already had opportunities enough to judge it. Of the difficulties and pains experienced in its collection I will say nothing. They are all forgotten in the pleasure of offering to the world an exhibit commensurate with the greatness of my State.

As Californians we have worked hard in common for our mother State, and each will find his best reward in the thought that California is excelled by none in the extent and representative character of her exhibit. * * *

Our celebration to-day is simply for the purpose of promoting knowledge of our country and telling you all something of that wondrous land on the blue Pacific's shore, where gold and silver combine with fruits and golden grain to form the El Dorado sought in vain by the Spaniard, but discovered and developed by the ever restless and energetic American.

The address of Col. Andrews was received by the audience with great favor. After the applause had died away, the commissioner introduced Major E. A. Burke, Director General of the Exposition, who delivered an address, from which the following extracts are made:

What part will California play in connection with the great plans and purposes of this Exposition? We know the relations it holds to our city, and to the great future we are building for it; we know of its gold and its grain, its fruits and its magnificent climate. We know of the vast stores we will draw from there, passing through our city on its way to the East and to Europe. It is no new dream—that of the vast trade and commerce that is to pass through and come from that State into New Orleans. The earliest step I made in manhood in the South was to come here with visions of the grand future of this city in connection with the extension of that great railroad system which has since been perfected between this city and California. I came here to to take the superintendency of a section of this railroad, which had then been commenced, and which has been only recently completed. Even then we dreamed of a great, grand, broad-gauge, double-track line from the Gulf to the Pacific, from New Orleans to San Francisco. [Applause.]

But aside from these points, one of the plans and purposes upon which I desire to touch is that, having gathered together here in one vast array all the industries of this country, exemplifications of the thrift and the progress and the commercial development of the whole of our States and Territories, we must now press on to those unoccupied markets that America should years ago have seized upon. Upon this stand the other day I spoke of the $400,000,000 of trade that lies to the south of us in the markets of Latin-America. But across the 2200 miles that lie between New Orleans and San Francisco, and still further across the Pacific, lies a great Oriental trade of $528,000,000 that belongs largely to this country, and that must come to us if we strive for it as we should. We know as regards the foreign exhibits of the Main Building that the first countries to accept the invitation of the Board of Management were China, Japan, Siam and Australasia. Why did they hasten to come to enjoy this feast? Because they know, as we know, that the future will bring the trade of these countries, unless we continue to reject it, into the lap of America. And this grand system of railroad, stretching out from New Orleans to far away San Francisco, why did it put forth its strength in making such magnificent contributions to the exhibit of California? They knew not only of the great interests that connected California with New Orleans as a shipping port to European countries for the products of their State, but they knew also that soon their line must become the great means of transit through the continent of the trade of the Orient.

Not only to the men of California and the Pacific slope do we express our admiration and gratitude, but to the noble women of that State and of the slope, who have presented here over 2000 specimens of the handiwork of the women of that section.

Commissioner Louis McWhirter, of Tennessee, was the orator of the day, and it is needless to observe that he acquitted himself as became "the son of Jack McWhirter." Here is a paragraph from his speech:

Colonel Andrews having left this city on a mission of war in 1844, returns on a mission of peace in 1885. His exhibit is beyond our dreams of development. He has placed here the sampled resources of her fields, forests and mines, side by side with the selected and best ideas of the age, in a carnival of embodied thoughts and a wilderness of manufactured products and inventions that stand as gigantic object lessons before the eyes of the assembled nations. Young Newtons will pass from his exhibit to wake up in other orchards, and boyish Franklins to dally with other clouds. It is therefore in the name of progress, in whose service he has fought; in the name of a great cause, of which the California Department is a grand example, and in the name of equal rights and universal liberty, of which she has ever been a chosen champion, that Tennessee congratulates California and bows in admiration to her representative. * * * If every State and Territory could be represented next year at the American exhibition in London by such men as Colonel Andrews, we would divert so much capital and labor to this country that America would be aroused from Hell Gate to the Golden Gate, and from Tampa Bay to Puget Sound, and in the grand jubilation that would follow, the very mountains would nod to the valleys and the valleys would smile upon the seas and the seas would kiss the shores of other lands to tell them of Utopia found in the youngest of all the nations.

Mr. McWhirter's speech created the utmost enthusiasm. Professor E. A. Spring, in charge of the Chautauqua Alcove, recited a poem, and the exercises were brought to a close. Commissioner Andrews then invited all present to visit California headquarters and partake of Californian hospitality.

Another New Orleans paper said: "California has cause to rejoice over her day. It was one of the grandest of the year." The souvenirs given away were unique and beautiful. Among these were elegant tri-colored silk rosettes for the ladies, silk badges for the gentlemen, and California pampas plumes for everybody.

During his address Dr. R. Beverly Cole made a telling apostrophe to Col. Andrews, and everybody, newspapers included, praised him unstintedly for his successful work.

One of the most delightful features of the celebration was the concert in the Woman's Department. It was late in the evening ere the last man, loth to acknowledge that California Day was a thing of the past, departed from California headquarters.

Our correspondent, in communicating to the TIMES his copious press extracts, says: "I submit these glowing tributes of the local press as pretty good proof—more credible perhaps than my too likely partial accounts—that California fairly outdid herself in the friendly contest of "Days" at the Exposition."

To record California's signal triumph in the arena of the States at the World's Exposition is exquisite pleasure.

CHEAP POISONS.

An Interested Kick Against "A Dime's Worth of Strichnia."

"Querist" sends the TIMES a communication whose substance boils down as follows:

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: In your issue of May 9th under the head of "Probable Suicide," you say Deputy Coroner Whigham found scraps of paper which had been torn up and thrown there. Put together they formed a druggist's label marked "Strychnine, poison. Godfrey Bros." Following up this clue it was learned that a man answering the description of deceased had called at Godfrey Bros.' drug store in the Nadeau block on Thursday, and bought a dime's worth of strychnine. His name appears on the register of poison purchasers as D. H. Griffith.

Do the druggists of Los Angeles conform to the law of California by keeping a correct register of purchasers of poisons? If they do, how is it the register in the case of D. H. Griffith did not give the Coroner some clue to the stated residence of said Griffith? The act of the Legislature plainly says. "The dealer in poisons must obtain the name and address of the purchaser, and the dealer must ascertain by due inquiry whether the name given by the purchaser is his true name or not, and for that purpose may require such person to be identified." Was the man Griffith identified?

Los Angeles boasts a population of 30,000, supports one hundred doctors, more or less, and twenty drug stores. Doctors and druggists are custodians of public health, and both have honorable professions, requiring sufficient education and good judgment. The act to regulate the sale of poisons has been in force since June 1st, 1880. It is a good law, intended to avoid indiscriminate use of deadly drugs. Any dealer who does not conform to it, is not a law-abiding citizen. And the seller has a just right to charge a price to fairly remunerate him for the time, labor and responsibility of keeping a registry.

When a druggist degrades his calling to a mercenary basis so low as to sell ten cents' worth of arsenic, or other poison, in a paper package, merely to accommodate a customer, he is certainly lost to the dignity and high calling of a careful, competent dealer in drugs. Is it not time that the druggists organize a pharmaceutical society for the scientific and moral improvement of the profession; for protection against "cutters" and dealers in adulterated medicines; and for more harmony with the physicians? That the community may know who are competent and honest dispensers of drugs, and learn that a legitimate chemist and apothecary will not deal out dime packages of strychnine to every stranger who merely says he wants to kill rats or rabbits.

"A Superior Woman" is the title of the forthcoming "No Name" novel. Every married editor in the land will claim that some one has written a novel about his wife.

Grant.

A name immortal, laurel crowned,
A name for song and story;
A name to echo down the years,
A synonym for glory.

A name to thrill men's hearts with fire
Who for their country battle;
A name for childhood's rosy lips
To lisp amid their prattle.

A name the nation speaks to bless,
And kings delight to honor,
No land withholds its meed of praise
From Grant, the whole world over.

An honest, guileless, childlike man,
This man with name immortal,
May he, like such, have entrance wide
At last through Heaven's portal.

STORIES OF THE DAY.

A Strange Affinity.

There is a family on Hill street who have a large dog. He is a sort of public character, a frequent visitor at stores, saloons, meat markets and business offices. He is inclined to be sociable, likes petting and makes many friends. Of late he has developed an affection for the occupants of the chicken yard, and it is not unusual to see him lying asleep upon the ground, a hen or two upon his back, and a circle of his feathered friends lying around him. They eat together, sleep together and are altogether a happy family.

"I See Jesus."

The little child of an infidel lay dying. Life's tide was slowly ebbing. But as a summer's day draws to its close in calm sweet peacefulness, little Willie's life was passing. But suddenly the heavy lids were lifted and the boy's eyes were opened wide, while his voice rang out clear and triumphant, "O, papa, I see Jesus! I know there is a God, for I see Jesus!" Five minutes later and Willie was at rest, and the invalid father had flung from him forever his unbelief.

A Smart Indiana Hen.

Indianapolis Sentinel.]

Mrs. Asa Ross, of Wabash, found one of her fine chickens apparently dying from an affectation of the throat or craw. With a sharp knife she cut the craw, or food sack, open, removed a large quantity of dry grass and undigested corn which had become packed in the craw, and then stitching up the cut carefully, liberated the chicken which, entirely recovered from its stupor, capered around and finally brought up on the nest, laying an egg within two hours of the time Mrs. Ross performed the operation.

A Specimen of Hideousness.

Providence Star.]

The city authorities of Rochester, N. Y., have removed the Cogswell fountain, which, ever since it was set up, has been an eyesore to the people of that city, whose artistic tastes have not been entirely depraved. The one in Boston will also have to go before long, and whether Pawtucket will be able to endure her specimen of hideousness or not is still questionable.

Coyotes and Councilmen.

Orange Tribune.]

The Covina Independent says the coyotes come into town at night and howl, thus disturbing the peaceful slumbers of the good Covina people. That's too bad. If you had a couple of Los Angeles policemen, or even a councilman, you could scare them clear out of the city limits and not half try.

An Elephant in Battle.

The Lakore (India) Gazette.]

There is a beautiful story of an old elephant that once engaged in an Indian battle. He was a standard-bearer, and carried on his hugh back the royal ensign, the rallying point of the Poonah host. At the beginning of the fight he lost his master. The mahout, or driver had just given him the word to halt, when he received a fatal wound and fell to the ground, where he lay under a heap of slain. The obedient elephant stood still while the battle closed around him and the standard he carried. He never stirred a foot, refusing to advance or retire as the conflict became hotter and fiercer, until the Mahrattas, seeing the standard still flying steadily in its place, refused to believe they were beaten, and rallied again and again around their colors. And all this while, amid the din of battle, the prudent animal stood straining its ears to catch the sound of that voice it would never hear again. At length the tide of conquest left the field deserted. The Mahrattas swept on in pursuit of the flying foe, but the elephant like a rock, stood there with the dead and dying around and the ensign waving in its place. For three days and nights it remained where its master had given the command to halt. No bribe or threat could move it. Then they sent to a village, 100 miles away, and brought the mahout's little son. The noble hero seemed then to remember how the driver had sometimes given his authority to the little child, and immediately, with all his shattered trappings clanging as he went, paced quietly and slowly away.

What is Colored Tea?

"The law relating to the importation of adulterated tea is, it is said, inducing New York parties to color tea after it has been entered for consumption. The Times of that city says there are five firms engaged in this business. The fact appears to be that the people of this country have been educated to the use of colored teas; and the employment of gypsum, soapstone and Prussian blue in the preparation of tea in Japan is due to the demand for tea having the attractive appearance obtained by facing or coloring with these substances."—[Grocer and Country Merchant.

It does seem as if the poor tea consumer was compassed about by snares and pitfalls on every side. He would assuredly soon rise in his wrath and swear never to taste tea again, were it not that an association of exporting firms in Japan, styling themselves the Japan Tea Syndicate, and keeping alive to the danger threatening the tea trade from the alarming increase of adulterations, which must surely affect consumption, have combined to export in a certain well-known package pure teas of merit only. The reputation of the Perfection Tea Can is too high to be increased by anything that the importers of Eola Tea can say, but they nevertheless point to the fact that both that first-class article and their full-flavored "White Cross" brand are imported only in this package, as conclusive proof of their purity and merit.

The Best Yet.

At a recent banquet in New Orleans, Senor Don J. Ramon de Ybarrola was called upon to respond to a toast to the fair sex. The Señor said: "Beauty and womanhood have for me no nationality. Blonde and brunette, black eyes and blue, raven locks and golden tresses, wherever I find them, the whole world around, I do homage to them. As one of the great poets of my own race has said in liquid Spanish:

"'Blue eyes say, "Love me, or I die!"
Black eyes say, "Love me, or I kill thee!"'

And as I neither wish to cause the death of one of them by not loving her, nor to die myself because I do not love the other, I worship them both. I love them all."

Attorney-General Charles B. Roberts, of Maryland, publicly certifies to the remarkable efficacy of Red Star Cough Cure. This remedy is rapidly gaining favor on account of its being free from opiates and poisons, and at the same time wonderfully effective.

KELLOGG'S

Anti-Bilious Worm Wafers

REMOVE ALL KINDS OF WORMS (WILL not remove the head of the Tapeworm) without the aid of other remedies. They act as a mild cathartic, and are useful in regulating the bowels, for costiveness, indigestion, sour or weak stomach. The symptoms of stomach worms are: Foul tongue, eyes heavy and expressionless, dry, hacking cough, sallow complexion, dark and blue circles around the eyes, foul and disagreeable breath, constant picking of the nose, grinding of the teeth, and starting up with terror and fright during sleep, at times very feverish accompanied with great thirst, he cheeks flushed and then again as pale as death and white around the mouth, the belly hard and swollen, short, cramping pains in the stomach. These worms sometimes knot up in the throat, causing death by strangulation. The symptoms of Ascarides generally called seat, or pin worms, are noticed by an itching sensation of the lower end of the bowels or rectum. There are other kinds of worms that inhabit the human system, but their symptoms are similar to those above mentioned. Persons can be sure when their children have the above symptoms that they are troubled with worms, and that KELLOGG'S WORM WAFERS will expel them in all cases. Can be sent by mail on receipt of price. Price per package, $1.

His party will go via Mojave and the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, and will be furnished with comfortable emigrant sleeping cars from Mojave to Kansas City without change. Do not confound this party with the alleged emigrant excursion which is advertised to leave on Tuesday, and which takes you to Lathrop, when you change cars and lay over fourteen hours; to Sacramento when you change cars again, and to Ogden, when you change cars the third time, to say nothing of its being forty-eight hours longer to Kansas City, Chicago, or St. Louis than is required by Mr. Phillips's party. Remember also that you save 559 miles freight train ride by taking the Mojave route.

The Los Virgines Murderer's Feigned Insanity

DISPROVED BY MEDICAL EXAMINATION.

An Interesting Scene in Judge Cheney's Court—Loreto Robles Responsible, and Must be Tried for Murder.

Loreto Robles, jr., the slayer of his mistress at Los Virgines, was brought over from the jail, yesterday afternoon, to Judge Cheney's court. It was that he might be examined as to his sanity by Drs. Wise, Ross and Cochrane. Robles was in a somewhat demoralized condition. He had been having a fierce scrimmage with his keepers, and in a desperate attempt to get away had flung himself and those who were trying to bind him against the door and walls, and had his head somewhat battered. He had at last been overpowered, and his hands strapped to his sides; and thus he was led to court.

An interpreter having been sworn, the prisoner was questioned by the doctors and the Court. The important points in his statement follow.

I came here because I had done some murdering, and didn't know whether I did it because I was sick or not. I have had a sickness of the heart for two weeks I should think. I believe I was married. Don't know as I am now. They tell me I killed my wife, but I don't know anything about it. When anyone is crazy, they don't know about things. Hadn't any quarrel with my wife, except that I was sick. I have lived with her about ten years, and lived happily. We have no children, because she had not the fruits of marriage. Don't know if I killed any dogs. They tell me I did. Can't remember anything about it. Anyone who is lost can't remember. Don't know which I killed first, the dogs or the woman. It is like a dream to me. The reason why I ran away after committing the deed was that I was a little crazy and had a sickness of the heart. Don't know where I ran to, but have a dream that it was to see Miguel Leonis. I was coming to give myself up, because I believe it is only right when a man does a thing in a dream that he should give himself up. I came here of my own accord, voluntarily. Somebody brought me here from Encino. I was crazy and had a sickness of the heart when I killed the dogs. Don't know it I killed the woman or the dogs first or all together. It is a dream. Have had such dreams before but never killed anybody before. Craziness and sickness of the heart made me kill the woman. Sometimes I drink. Had taken some drinks that day, but not enough to make me crazy. This is the second time I was ever crazy. The first time, I ran away from my father, and when he came after me I ran over him. Am better now, but a little crazy still. Am not so crazy now as I was the other day. It came on me very suddenly. I ran away to deliver myself up, because a man in a dream thinks he ought to. Went to sleep at Leonis's, and when I woke up, got my senses and knew I'd done wrong. Knew I'd done wrong because an Americ n friend told me so. Don't know his name. Am a little crazy still. Know the roads to Los Angeles, and the reason I ran to Encino instead of coming here to deliver myself up, was because I was a little crazy. Asked Celestine to protect me because folks were howling around, and being crazy I was scared. Never was jealous of my wife. Don't know that she ever had anything to do with other men. Might have done so, but I didn't know it. The property belonged to me and my wife, but the title was in one name. Don't know if it was hers or mine, because I am loco. It never affected me that we had no children. The other day was the only attack of locura I have had since I was twoive. Don't know what I shot my wife with, but think a rifle, as there is no pistol in the house. The rifle is a cartridge rifle, and shoots one shot. I left it in the house after I had killed her. Bought it of Don Pedro Sepulveda's son for $5. Could kill a bear with it if I got in a good position. 'Why did I tie the handkerchief around her neck after I had killed her?' I didn't. That's nothing, anyway. We often do that.

The prisoner acted in a perfectly rational manner, talked easily and without hesitation or the slightest excitement. His face showed no wildness of expression.

Jailer Thompson sworn: After this prisoner was brought to jail, three or four of us had a heavy tussle with him to keep him from getting out. He is a bad man to handle. He was troublesome, and hammered other prisoners, and we had to lock him up by himself. He said he felt very badly and wanted some liquor. This morning we went to clean his cell and had another fierce tussle with him. It took four good men to handle him. The reason of his fighting was an attempt to get out. Cursed around and said he'd get out anyhow. In the struggle he ran against the door and walls several times, and cut his head. Did not butt his head against the wall purposely. I have talked with him at other times, and he told me freely that he had killed his wife and dogs with a rifle. He said he killed her because she was a bad woman, and added, "Bad women have bad ways." He eats all right, all he gets. Don't think he slept much last night. Hasn't been filthy in his habits in jail, and hasn't showed signs of insanity.

Constable Ed Huber sworn: Think the man is insane. He talked like a crazy man in the jail, said he was the boss of the room, etc.

Loreto Robles, sr., sworn: Am father of the prisoner. He had a crazy spell at twelve years old and ran away four or five miles. I caught him, brought him back and cured him in three weeks. This was in Batujo, Sonora. Ever since he has been afflicted with craziness, sometimes very sick. His sickness is something like crazy spells. Doesn't drink much, and isn't quarrelsome when drunk. I live two miles from him and saw him often. He and his wife didn't quarrel. Had these crazy spells every month or two, and they lasted four or five days. Never has been injured by sunstroke or blows on head. His wife wasn't afraid of him when he had these spells. He never tries to run away in them. I think they are crazy attacks because he talks foolishness and things he ought not to. My wife and other children and myself never had such spells. Some of my family turned out crazy. Didn't think my son capable of doing business alone, and always went with him.

[It will be remembered, as stated by the report in Thursday's TIMES, that old man Robles swore before the Coroner and jury that there never was any insanity in his family; that his son, the prisoner, had always seemed natural, and had always acted the same. His present change of base is doubtless due to natural anxiety to clear his son.]

S. Celestine, keeper of the saloon at the Encino rancho, where the murderer was captured, was sworn and detailed at length the circumstances concisely stated in Thursday's TIMES. The prisoner has been drinking considerably of late. Sometimes when drinking he acted like a man not well in his senses. Always seemed right when sober. Never saw him other than sensible when sober. Never had any suspicion of his being insane nor having crazy spells. When he came to my place he was a little excited. Had white handkerchief around his neck with a little blood on it, and said he cut his finger. Was accompanied by an old American from Florence, whose name I don't know. Robles wanted to borrow my horses to go to the Calabasas. * * * He showed me a little book with nothing written in it, and said, "you'll promise to help me through? There's a point in the law here and we can fight the world with it."

Edward R. Stokes sworn: Have known prisoner three years, seeing him every other day. His conduct was good, but he sometimes got drunk. Never heard of his having crazy spells, nor had any suspicion but what he was perfectly sane. He went to town and came back frequently—almost always alone. Hardly ever saw his father with him. Don't know of any trouble, or jealousy between him and his wife, but have heard that he made her do most all the work and treated her roughly. Never showed signs of insanity, even when in liquor.

[This witness, who is said to be a reliable man, and will be valuable on the trial, said; after the examination was over: "I didn't need to say very much then, but it is a fact that Robles did abuse his wife badly. We often went for him about it out there. There is no doubt at all that he is perfectly sane."]

The prisoner was then remanded into the custody of the Sheriff and led back to jail. There was no one who heard the examination but felt sure of his sanity and responsibility for the horrible murder of his wife. There was general satisfaction, therefore, when the examining doctors, after a five-minute consultation, pronounced Robles sane. Robles is a tall, lean, but strongly built Sonoreño, about 35 years old, with a thin face and vicious look. He will be tried for his life.

Fruit-Growers' Meeting at Pasadena.

Pursuant to a call about fifty Pasadena fruit-growers assembled at Williams's Hall, Thursday evening, to discuss means to prevent the dreaded white or cottony cushion scale from gaining a foothold in the settlement. After some discussion a committee of five on organization was appointed, comprising the following gentlemen: Judge Eaton, B. O. Clark, F. J. Woodbury, J. S. Mills, Dr. O. H. Congar. This committee is to appoint four examiners whose duty it will be to visit all the orchards and examine every citrus tree in the settlement. If the pest is found, vigorous measures will be taken to exterminate it. The meeting adjourned subject to the call of the committee.

Wanted, a Jail.

In October next the county will be practically without a jail, the owner of the property on which the present jail stands having signified his intention of either tearing the building down to erect a handsome business block, or else demanding an exorbitant rent. The city is well provided, but the county may have to go back to the primitive fashion of chaining its prisoners to trees.

Frau Osthoff, whose supervision of the cooking is making the café department of Osthoff & Zost, on First street, so popular, says: "It makes it very easy and convenient now on a small No. 6 stove, with the Edwards oil burner, to provide our daily lunch for over a hundred people."

THE AZUSA MYSTERY SOLVED.

Not a Murder, Merely a Natural Death.

Coroner McFarland returned yesterday from Azusa, bringing the results of his investigation of Mrs. Kate Hartell's death. The theory that she was murdered—at first so strongly advanced, chiefly on authority of the husband's suspicions—must be abandoned. Dr. McFarland, assisted by Drs. Orr and McCurdy, of Azusa, and McCallum, of El Monte, had the body exhumed, and held a most thorough examination thereof. The Coroner's jury consisted of Perry Malone, Geo. T. Ott, C. C. Wilson, T.
